

LAMADRID Malbec "Matilde"

The Lamadrid winery is owned by Guillermo García. Guillermo's mother, Matilde Lamadrid got him out of Cuba at the age of 11 during the revolution so he could have an opportunity to have a good life. In honor of his mother opening the door of opportunity for him to have a successful life, Guillermo named the winery Lamadrid and his vineyard and flagship wine after her (and displaying the door of opportunity she opened for him, on the label).

The district of Agrelo, in the department of Luján de Cuyo, Mendoza, is called "the land of the Malbec." This is one of the oldest and most premier growing regions in Argentina. Lamadrid strives to represent the best expression of the beautiful terroir of Agrelo.

"The flagship Matilde Malbec was sourced from Lamadrid's 1929 vineyard in Agrelo- Lujan De Cuyo. This vineyard produces very small berries in which it takes 4 plants to make one bottle of wine.

Aged 24 months in 100% new French oak.

This wine displays soaring aromas of black cherry, black raspberry, and exotic spices, full body, and a plush, velvety palate feel.

Full bodied red that screams for a steak and strong cheeses.

LAMADRID Malbec "Matilde"

The Lamadrid winery is owned by Guillermo García. Guillermo's mother, Matilde Lamadrid got him out of Cuba at the age of 11 during the revolution so he could have an opportunity to have a good life. In honor of his mother opening the door of opportunity for him to have a successful life, Guillermo named the winery Lamadrid and his vineyard and flagship wine after her (and displaying the door of opportunity she opened for him, on the label).

The district of Agrelo, in the department of Luján de Cuyo, Mendoza, is called "the land of the Malbec." This is one of the oldest and most premier growing regions in Argentina. Lamadrid strives to represent the best expression of the beautiful terroir of Agrelo.

"The flagship Matilde Malbec was sourced from Lamadrid's 1929 vineyard in Agrelo- Lujan De Cuyo. This vineyard produces very small berries in which it takes 4 plants to make one bottle of wine.

Aged 24 months in 100% new French oak.

This wine displays soaring aromas of black cherry, black raspberry, and exotic spices, full body, and a plush, velvety palate feel.

Full bodied red that screams for a steak and strong cheeses.

LAMADRID Malbec "Matilde"

The Lamadrid winery is owned by Guillermo García. Guillermo's mother, Matilde Lamadrid got him out of Cuba at the age of 11 during the revolution so he could have an opportunity to have a good life. In honor of his mother opening the door of opportunity for him to have a successful life, Guillermo named the winery Lamadrid and his vineyard and flagship wine after her (and displaying the door of opportunity she opened for him, on the label).

The district of Agrelo, in the department of Luján de Cuyo, Mendoza, is called "the land of the Malbec." This is one of the oldest and most premier growing regions in Argentina. Lamadrid strives to represent the best expression of the beautiful terroir of Agrelo.

"The flagship Matilde Malbec was sourced from Lamadrid's 1929 vineyard in Agrelo- Lujan De Cuyo. This vineyard produces very small berries in which it takes 4 plants to make one bottle of wine.

Aged 24 months in 100% new French oak.

This wine displays soaring aromas of black cherry, black raspberry, and exotic spices, full body, and a plush, velvety palate feel.

Full bodied red that screams for a steak and strong cheeses.