Located in San Pablo, Uco Valley, at the foothill of the Andes Mountain, Tapiz's new winery in this high altitude region is dedicated exclusively to the elaboration of the Tapiz lines: Alta Collection, Selección de Barricas, Black Tears, Las Notas, Organic, Reserves and Classics. The winery's capacity is 600.000 liters in stainless steel tanks, with 500 oak barrels - 70% French and 30% American - and equipped with a bottling line and stowage.

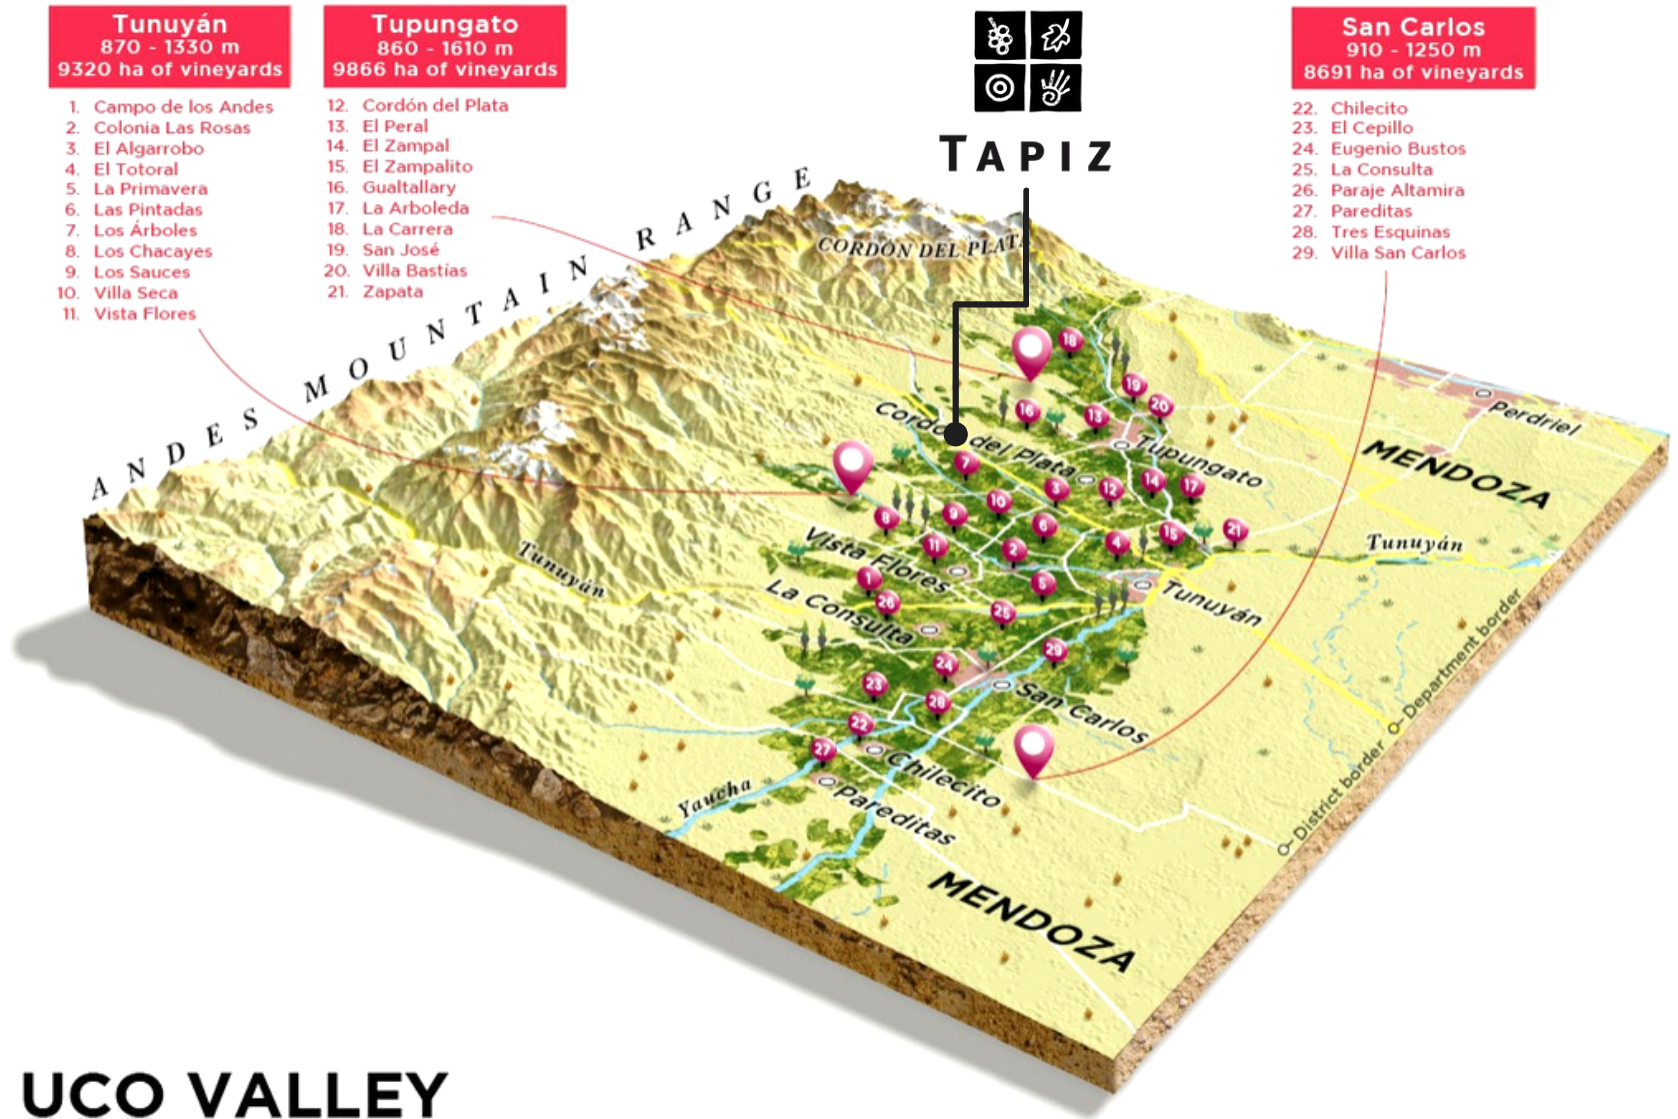

Home to the Tapiz Winery, this high altitude vineyard stands impressively at 1,350masl (4430ft) making it one of the highest vineyards in this region.

With 452has, the grapes from this vineyards are destined exclusively to the elaboration of the Tapiz lines.

This region - with its altitude and optimal thermal range which translates into an ideal balance of acidity and alcohol- is perfect for growing both red and white varieties.

These are wines of intense polyphenolic richness, as revealed by their marked and distinctive aromatic profile. In general they offer great aging potential and character, and a rich mouthfeel. The white varieties stand out for their marked mineral character, while the red ones like Malbec lean towards floral aromas with deep violet hues and a solid, explosive structure.
